

The Formal Boundary of The Highams Park Planning Group

This map of the boundary for the Highams Park Plan was proposed by the Highams Park Planning Group and adopted by the London Borough of Waltham Forest in July 2014.

The border was constructed based on interviewing residents and tries where possible to follow natural features. The eastern and north eastern boundaries have been pushed out further than one might expect to align with the boundary of the London Borough of Waltham Forest. This means that some areas near the edge may not consider themselves to be part of Highams Park. Council officers encouraged this extension to avoid a strip of homes between the two borough boundaries being potentially unrepresented, and to allow all residents to have the opportunity to be involved in the neighbourhood planning process regardless of the name given to the area concerned.
